

Prevailing Wage Seminar

Wednesday, August 19, 2009
11:30am to 2:00pm

“Prevailing Wage Law in California: A comprehensive discussion of California’s prevailing wage and apprenticeship requirements; including a discussion on what constitutes a “public works” project, what is a “worker” for purposes of prevailing wage, current developments in the area of off-site fabrication and trucking, researching the correct prevailing wage determination, recordkeeping and fringe benefit requirements, and apprenticeship obligations on public works projects. This informative discussion is a must for those new to prevailing wage as well as those needing to know about new developments and shifting risk and liability.”

Topics of discussion:

- Which projects are covered by prevailing wage?
- Who is entitled to prevailing wage?
- Determining the prevailing wage rate.
- Recordkeeping and fringe benefit requirements
- Strategies for compliance and limiting liability
- Apprenticeship obligations on California Public Works Projects

Michael A. Cable, Partner in the Sacramento office of Atkinson, Andelson, Loya, Ruud & Romo. He has extensive experience in the area of competitive bidding, bid protests, substitution of subcontractors, prevailing wage, apprenticeship requirements, mechanics’ liens, stop notices, payment bond claims, prompt payment remedies, and a variety of other business and real estate transactions.

Seminar will be held at ABC. Lunch will be provided.
